Reading and Writing Data

In [162...   !cat ex1.csv
             # use !type ex1.csv for windows OS

a,b,c,d,message
1,2,3,4,hello
5,6,7,8,world
9,10,11,12,foo
```

```
In [163...   import pandas as pd
             pd.read_csv('ex1.csv')
```

Out[163]:
	a	b	c	d	message
0	1	2	3	4	hello
1	5	6	7	8	world
2	9	10	11	12	foo

```
In [164...   pd.read_table('ex1.csv',sep=',')
```

Out[164]:
	a	b	c	d	message
0	1	2	3	4	hello
1	5	6	7	8	world
2	9	10	11	12	foo

```
In [165...   import pandas as pd file_path='/home/ankit/Desktop/ml/InterviewPreparation/AI-ML-DS/1.Python/' print(pd.read_csv(file_path+'ex2.csv',names=['a','b','c','d','message']))
```

   a   b   c   d message
0  1   2   3   4   hello
1  5   6   7   8   world
2  9  10  11  12     foo
```

Suppose you wanted the message column to be the index of the returned DataFrame. You can either indicate you want the column at index 4 or named 'message' using the index_col argument

```
In [166...   print(pd.read_csv(file_path+'ex2.csv',names=['a','b','c','d','message'],index_col='message'))
```

         a   b   c   d message
hello    1   2   3   4
world    5   6   7   8
foo      9  10  11  12
```

```
In [167...   print(pd.read_csv(file_path+'/ex2.csv',names=['a','b','c','d','message'],index_col=[4,1]))
```

           a   c   d message b
hello   2  1   3   4
world   6  5   7   8
```

While you could do some munging by hand, the fields here are separated by a variable amount of whitespace. In these cases, you can pass a regular expression as a delimiter for read_table. This can be expressed by the regular expression \s+

```
In [168...   result = pd.read_table(file_path+'ex3.txt', sep='\\s+') print(result)
```

```
            A         B         C

ddd -0.871858 -0.348382  1.100491
```

```
In [169...   print(pd.read_csv(file_path+'ex2.csv',names=['a','b','c','d','message'],skiprows=[0,1]))
```

   a   b   c   d message
0  9  10  11  12     foo
```

Handling missing values is an important and frequently nuanced part of the file parsing process. Missing data is usually either not present (empty string) or marked by some sentinel value. By default, pandas uses a set of commonly occurring sentinels, such as NA and NULL

```
In [170...   result = pd.read_table(file_path+'ex5.csv',sep=',')
             print(result)
             print(pd.isnull(result))
```

```
   something  a   b     c   d message
0       one   1   2   3.0   4     NaN
1       two   5   6   NaN   8   world
2     three   9  10  11.0  12     foo
   something      a      b      c      d  message
0     False  False  False  False  False     True
1     False  False  False   True  False    False
2     False  False  False  False  False    False
```

Make a value in df to null

In [171]:
```python result = pd.read_table(file_path+'ex5.csv',sep=',',na_values={'message': ['foo','world'],\ 'something':['two','three']}) print(result)
```

```
   something  a   b     c   d message
0       one   1   2   3.0   4     NaN
1       NaN   5   6   NaN   8     NaN
2       NaN   9  10  11.0  12     NaN
```

In [172]:
```python
change the display setting to show only max 10 rows for a dataframe

import pandas as pd
pd.options.display.max_rows = 10
```

In [173]:
```python
Data can also be exported to a delimited format
result.to_csv(file_path+'out.csv')
```

In [174]:
```python
Other delimiters can be used, of course (writing to sys.stdout so it prints the text result to the console)
Missing values appear as empty strings in the output. You might want to denote them by some other sentinel va

import sys
result.to_csv(sys.stdout,sep='|',index=False,header=False,na_rep='NULL')
```

```

JSON Data

JSON (short for JavaScript Object Notation) has become one of the standard formats for sending data by HTTP request between web browsers and other applications. It is a much more free-form data format than a tabular text form like CSV.

JSON object to python object using loads method and python object to json objects using dumps method.

In [175]:
```python
json_obj="""
{"name":[{"myself":["ankit"],"mylife":"kiio"},{"age":[21,22],"state":["UP","Punjab"]}],
 "Institute":["ISI","IIIT-D"]
}
"""
```

In [176]:
```python
json_obj
```

Out[176]:
```
'\n{"name":[{"myself":["ankit"],"mylife":"kiio"},{"age":[21,22],"state":["UP","Punjab"]}],\n "Institute":["ISI","IIIT-D"]\n}\n'
```

In [177]:
```python import json
python_obj=json.loads(json_obj) print(python_obj)
```

```
{'name': [{'myself': ['ankit'], 'mylife': 'kiio'}, {'age': [21, 22], 'state': ['UP', 'Punjab']}], 'Institute': ['ISI', 'IIIT-D']}
```

In [178]:
```python
json_obj=json.dumps(python_obj)
print(json_obj)
```

```
{"name": [{"myself": ["ankit"], "mylife": "kiio"}, {"age": [21, 22], "state": ["UP", "Punjab"]}], "Institute": ["ISI", "IIIT-D"]}
```

The pandas.read_json can automatically convert JSON datasets in specific arrangements into a Series or DataFrame.

In [179]:
```python
data = pd.read_json(file_path+'example.json') data
```

Out[179]:

	id	name	age	city	salary	department
0	1	John Doe	28	New York	75000	Engineering
1	2	Jane Smith	32	Los Angeles	85000	Marketing
2	3	Bob Johnson	45	Chicago	95000	Sales
3	4	Alice Brown	29	San Francisco	80000	Engineering
4	5	Charlie Wilson	35	Boston	70000	HR

In [180… data = pd.read_json(file_path+'example1.json')
          data
```

Out[180]:

3	4	Alice Brown	29	San Francisco	80000	Engineering

If you need to export data from pandas to JSON, one way is to use the to_json methods on Series and DataFrame

```
In [181… data.to_json('sample.json')
          pd.read_json('sample.json')
```

Out[181]:

	id	name	age	city	salary	department

1	2	Jane Smith	32	Los Angeles	85000	Marketing
2	3	Bob Johnson	45	Chicago	95000	Sales
3	4	Alice Brown	29	San Francisco	80000	Engineering

XML and HTML: Web Scraping

Python has many libraries for reading and writing data in the ubiquitous HTML and XML formats. Examples include lxml, Beautiful Soup, and html5lib. While lxml is comparatively much faster in general, the other libraries can better handle malformed HTML or XML files.

pandas has a built-in function, read_html, which uses libraries like lxml and Beautiful Soup to automatically parse tables out of HTML files as DataFrame objects.

The pandas.read_html function has a number of options, but by default it searches for and attempts to parse all tabular data contained within tags. The result is a list of DataFrame objects.

```
In [182… tables=pd.read_html('table.html')
          print(tables[0])
```
```
   Employee ID             Name   Department   Salary  Performance Score
0       E10234       John Smith    Marketing  $72,500                 88
1       E10235         Jane Doe  Engineering  $95,000                 92
2       E10236   Robert Johnson        Sales  $65,000                 79
3       E10237   Emily Williams  Engineering  $98,000                 95
4       E10238    Michael Brown           HR  $68,000                 85
```

```
In [183… tables
```

Out[183]:
```

XML (eXtensible Markup Language) is another common structured data format supporting hierarchical, nested data with metadata.

```
In [184… from lxml import objectify parsed=objectify.parse(open('Performance_MNR.xml')) root=parsed.getroot() xml_data=[]
          skip_fields=['PARENT_SEQ','INDICATOR_SEQ','DESIRED_CHANGE','DECIMAL_PLACES'] for ele in root.INDICATOR:
              data={}
              for child in ele.getchildren():
                  if child.tag in skip_fields:
                      continue else:
                      data[child.tag]=child.pyval xml_data.append(data) df=pd.DataFrame(xml_data) df
```

	INDICATOR_NAME	VALUE	UNIT	PERIOD
0	Revenue Growth	15.5	Percentage	Q1 2024
1	Customer Satisfaction	92.3	Score	Q1 2024
2	Production Cost	250000.0	USD	Q1 2024
3	Employee Turnover	8.2	Percentage	Q1 2024

XML data can get much more complicated than this example. Each tag can have metadata, too. Consider an HTML link tag, which is also valid XML.

```python
from io  import StringIO root=objectify.parse(StringIO('Google')).getroot() print(root.get("href")) print(root.text)
```

```
http://www.google.com
Google
```

One of the easiest ways to store data (also known as serialization) efficiently in binary format is using Python's built-in pickle serialization. pandas objects all have a to_pickle method that writes the data to disk in pickle format.

```python
df.to_pickle('serialized_dataframe') pd.read_pickle('serialized_dataframe')
```

	INDICATOR_NAME	VALUE	UNIT	PERIOD
0	Revenue Growth	15.5	Percentage	Q1 2024
1	Customer Satisfaction	92.3	Score	Q1 2024
2	Production Cost	250000.0	USD	Q1 2024
3	Employee Turnover	8.2	Percentage	Q1 2024

HDF5 is a well-regarded file format intended for storing large quantities of scientific array data. It is available as a C library, and it has interfaces available in many other languages, including Java, Julia, MATLAB, and Python. The "HDF" in HDF5 stands for hierarchical data format.

Each HDF5 file can store multiple datasets and supporting metadata. Compared with simpler formats, HDF5 supports on-the-fly compression with a variety of compression modes, enabling data with repeated patterns to be stored more efficiently. HDF5 can be a good choice for working with very large datasets that don't fit into memory, as you can efficiently read and write small sections of much larger arrays.

While it's possible to directly access HDF5 files using either the PyTables or h5py libraries, pandas provides a high-level interface that simplifies storing Series and DataFrame object. The HDFStore class works like a dict and handles the low-level details

```python
!conda install pytables -y
```

```python
!pip install --user tables
```

```python import numpy as np frame = pd.DataFrame({'a': np.random.randn(100)}) store = pd.HDFStore('mydata.h5') store['obj1'] = frame store['obj1_col'] = frame['a'] print(store['obj1'])

HDFStore supports two storage schemas, 'fixed' and 'table'. The latter is generally slower, but it supports query operations using a special syntax

```
In [191...  store.put('obj2', frame, format='table') store.select('obj2', where=['index >= 10 and index <= 15'])
```

Out[191]:

```
Out[192]:  [('/obj1', /obj1 (Group) ''
                children := ['axis0' (Array), 'axis1' (Array), 'block0_values' (Array), 'block0_items' (Array)]), ('/obj1_col',
              /obj1_col (Group) ''
                children := ['index' (Array), 'values' (Array)]), ('/obj2',
              /obj2 (Group) ''
                children := ['table' (Table)]), ('/obj3',
              /obj3 (Group) ''
```

```
In [193...  store.close()
```

The put is an explicit version of the `store['obj2'] = frame` method but allows us to set other options like the storage format.

The pandas.read_hdf function gives you a shortcut to these tools

```
In [194...  frame.to_hdf('mydata.h5', 'obj3', format='table')
            pd.read_hdf('mydata.h5', 'obj3', where=['index < 5'])

If you are processing data that is stored on remote servers, like Amazon S3 or HDFS, using a different binary format designed for distributed storage like Apache Parquet may be more suitable. Python for Parquet and other such storage formats is still developing.

If you work with large quantities of data locally, I would encourage you to explore PyTables and h5py to see how they can suit your needs. Since many data analysis problems are I/O-bound (rather than CPU-bound), using a tool like HDF5 can massively accelerate your applications.

HDF5 is not a database. It is best suited for write-once, read-many datasets. While data can be added to a file at any time, if multiple writers do so simultaneously, the file can become corrupted.

pandas also supports reading tabular data stored in Excel 2003 (and higher) files using either the ExcelFile class or pandas.read_excel function.
Internally these tools use the add-on packages xlrd and openpyxl to read XLS and XLSX files, respectively.

In [195... # !pip install xlrd==1.1.0
          # !pip install openpyxl
```

```
In [196... # !pip uninstall xlrd -y
          # !pip install xlrd
```

```
In [197... # !pip uninstall xlrd -y
```

```
In [198... # !pip install pandas>=1.3.0 openpyxl>=3.0.0
```

```
In [199... xlsx=pd.ExcelFile(file_path+'My_Excel.xlsx', engine='openpyxl')
          pd.read_excel(xlsx,sheet_name='Sheet1')
```

To write pandas data to Excel format, you must first create an ExcelWriter, then write data to it using pandas objects' to_excel method

```
In [201... # Use mode='a' to append to existing file instead of overwriting writer = pd.ExcelWriter(file_path + 'My_Excel.xlsx', mode='a', engine='openpyxl') frame = pd.DataFrame(np.random.randn(5), columns=['Random Numbers']) frame.to_excel(writer, sheet_name='Sheet4')

          # Use close() instead of save() for better practice
          writer.close()
```

Interacting with Web APIs

Many websites have public APIs providing data feeds via JSON or some other format. There are a number of ways to access these APIs from Python; one easy-to-use method that I recommend is the requests package.

we can make a GET HTTP request using the add-on requests library

```
In [202... import requests response=requests.get('https://www.weatherapi.com/') print(response)
```

<Response [200]>

The Response object's json method will return a dictionary containing JSON parsed into native Python objects

```
In [203... import requests
          data = requests.get('https://api.openf1.org/v1/drivers').json() print(data[:3])  # Show first 3 drivers

The SQLAlchemy project is a popular Python SQL toolkit that abstracts away many of the common differences between SQL databases.

pandas has a read_sql function that enables you to read data easily from a general SQLAlchemy connection. Here, we'll connect to the same SQLite database with SQLAlchemy and read data from the table created before

```
In [207]:    import sqlalchemy as sqla
             import pandas as pd

             db = sqla.create_engine('sqlite:///mydata.sqlite')
             # Use SQLAlchemy's execute method directly with db.connect() as conn:
                 result = conn.execute(sqla.text('select * from test'))
                 df = pd.DataFrame(result.fetchall(), columns=result.keys())
```

```
In [208]:    df
```

Out[208]:

	a	b	c	d
0	Atlanta	Georgia	1.25	6
1	Tallahassee	Florida	2.60	3
2	Sacramento	California	1.70	5

In [209]:    import urllib.request
             import json

             with urllib.request.urlopen(your_url) as url:

                 print(data)
